

Freshman Admission Summary 2019

Division of Enrollment Management

Dear colleagues,

At DePaul, our track record of success in freshman enrollment has been rooted in continuous improvement. From the early adoption of non-cognitive variables in admission to our recent expansion in national recruitment, we have built upon our accomplishments through innovation and strategic initiatives to improve our outcomes each year. And through this approach, we achieved record-breaking success in 2019.

This fall, DePaul enrolled 2,627 freshmen—the largest freshman class in university history—34 students more than the previous record set in 2012 and 52 more than last fall. By generating a record number of applications (26,895) and holding our admit rate steady, the average high school GPA of enrolled freshmen increased slightly while test scores held steady, resulting in the most academically prepared class in recent memory.

While the size and academic credentials of the class are critical, DePaul's mission is to also serve the needs of students traditionally underrepresented in higher education. To that end, we delivered one of the most diverse classes in university history: a record 44% of freshmen are students of color, 33% are first-generation students, 30% are Pell-eligible and 18% are from the city of Chicago.

One of the key drivers of these accomplishments is test-optional admission. Test-optional continues to expand as a share of the class, generating 4,277 applications and a record 363 enrolled students, or 14% of the entire cohort. The growth of test-optional since it was first piloted in 2011, and the success of test-optional students, reinforces what we know to be true: high school performance in a rigorous, college-preparatory curriculum is the best predictor of academic success for DePaul freshmen.

While admission serves as the face of the institution to prospective freshmen, we know enrolling a class is a collective effort. It requires contributions from institutional partners like financial aid, housing and first-year programs (and many more) to community partners like counselors, teachers and other key influencers. We are incredibly grateful for all that you do in helping a DePaul education become reality for our students.

On behalf of everyone at DePaul, thank you.

Sincerely,

New Freshman Academic Profile

Measures of high school preparation are among the strongest in university history. The most popular 10 majors enrolled nearly half of new freshmen, and interest in technology, design and cinematic arts programs continues to grow in the College of Computing and Digital Media, now our largest college for new freshmen.

To comply with federal standards on reporting of race and ethnicity, students must identify their ethnicity and their race. For ethnicity, students must select either Hispanic or non-Hispanic. Race is then reported only for students who are non-Hispanic. A student may indicate a single race (e.g., Asian, African American, etc.) or “two or more races” (i.e., multiracial).

Test-Optional Admission

When DePaul announced a pilot program making it the largest private test-optional university in the nation in 2011, it was on the brink of a nationwide shift in university policies on standardized testing in admission. Approved on a permanent basis by DePaul's Faculty Council in 2016, test-optional continues to increase as a share of the freshman class.

Fourteen percent of the freshman class, or 363 students, enrolled through the test-optional program. These students come from a wide range of geographic, socioeconomic and ethnic/racial groups.

Our research shows that the single best predictor of college success — by an overwhelming margin — is high school performance in a rigorous, college-preparatory curriculum.

The enrolling freshmen who did not submit test scores have a slightly higher average high school GPA compared with freshmen who applied with test scores (3.72 compared with 3.69).
